Rebels move on to semifinals today vs. Lincoln

Telstar's soccer team, ranked #3 in Western Maine Class B, defeated a stubborn Mt. Abram squad (ranked #6) Monday, in Bethel. The game had been scheduled for last Saturday, but the stormy weather forced a postponement to Monday. The weather was not much better on Monday, but good enough to play in. The final score was 2-0.

The first half was a defensive struggle on the part of both teams, though played mostly on the Mt. Abram side of the field. But, as Coach Bob Remington commented afterwards, "The more the game went on, the more we controlled them."

In the second half Carlos Airpuri scored on a corner kick from Gregor Adler. Eric Benoit then scored, with an assist by Brent Remington.

Telstar outshot the visitors, 21 to 8, and goalie Nathan Bean had 6 saves, compared to Mt. Abram's 19.

While the Rebels were downing Mt. Abram, #2-ranked Lincoln Academy was crushing #7-ranked Maranacook, 10-1.

Since Lincoln is the higher-ranked team, the Rebels will have to hit the road and travel to the coast. The game is scheduled for this afternoon.

Bethel selectmen modify changes in landfill rules and traffic ordinance

The Bethel Board of Selectmen Monday night compromised with public opinion—as expressed in public hearings last week—and modified the wording of proposed changes in two ordinances.

Both sets of proposed changes had come under strong criticism at last week's public hearings. The changes made by the selectmen are expected to mollify—to some extent—those expressed concerns.

On the traffic ordinance, the selectmen compromised on the matter of skateboarding, roller skating, roller skiing, etc. The board decided to prohibit such activities only within the urban area, as defined by the State Department of Transportation. (An MDOT map will be provided for public inspection.)

On the question of horsehoes, the board agreed to change the wording of the prohibition to read: "Any horses using the public streets of Bethel, between April 1 and Oct. 31, shall be shod with street shoes [that is, flat shoes], except on Mollycodd Day and other such festivals."

Left as proposed in the traffic ordinance is a prohibition on parking on the westerly side of Vernon Street starting

Incumbents prevail in Telstar mock election

Telstar Regional High School students opted for the incumbent, or the incumbent party, in three major races decided in a mock election at the school yesterday (Tuesday).

George Bush easily won the students' presidential nod, polling 126 votes to Mike Dukakis' 59. Sen. George Mitchell bested challenger Jasper Wyman, 140-50, for the state's contested U.S. Senate seat, and Rep. Olympia Snowe outpolled Kenneth Hayes, 173-45.

In local races, State Representative Jeffery Mills (a Telstar alumnus) beat out challenger Harlan E. Doak, 144-41, but State Senator Edgar Erwin was ousted by challenger Gary Bickford, 100-93.

In the race for county commissioner, incumbent Norman Ferguson edged out hometown candidate Ginger Kelly, 97-85. Social Studies Teacher Rodney Abbott, who has conducted the mock elections since 1964, said the students' votes on national races are usually an accurate indicator of how the actual races will turn out.

Board forms committee to look at early release; reaffirms policy for now Taking up once again the Wednesday early release policy for elementary pupils, the SAD #44 Board of Directors voted Monday evening to let the policy stand—at least until its first scheduled review on Dec. 12.

However, in response to the concerns of parents opposed to the early release, the board also agreed to form a joint committee of parents, administrators and teachers to review alternatives to the Wednesday professional development days. That committee will also report back to the board on Dec. 12.

Monday evening's discussion followed the pattern of earlier debates on the issue, with a small number of parents

State report card shows that smaller SAD 44 more costly to run than the larger SAD 17

The state's first annual "report card" for Maine schools and administrative districts shows that per pupil costs in SAD #44 are higher than the state average. Further, for the past three years the district's students have scored below the state average on the Maine Educational Assessment. The report also shows that compared to figures for the state as a whole, the district spends a smaller percentage of its budget on teaching and a higher percentage on administration.

Superintendent Dewaine Craig attributed the district's relatively high per pupil and administrative costs to the small number of students (1,165) in the district and to its comparatively large geographic spread.

The expense involved in maintaining and staffing a number of small, widely separated schools drives up the district's fixed costs, he said.

The superintendent also noted that during the two-year period measured by the report (1986-87), the district's per-pupil costs had gone up only $109, while the average state per-pupil cost had gone up $280 (to $2,725). [These figures do not include the cost of transportation, building construction or major building renovations and expansion.]

The district's mill rate for education actually went down, from 12.43 to 12.17, during the period, he pointed out, while the state average mill rate was rising, from 11.24 to 11.45.

According to the state figures, regular, special and vocational education accounted for 54 percent of the SAD #44 budget, compared to a state average of 60.1 percent. Transportation costs took up 9.9 percent of the district budget, compared to a state average of 6.7 percent. School administration (not including system administration) accounted for 8.5 percent of the SAD #44 budget, compared to 5.6 percent for the state as a whole. The SAD #44 figure does not include the new or restructured principal positions created for the current school year.

Attendance in SAD #44 is slightly better than in the state average, with elementary pupils in class 96 percent of the time and secondary students 94 percent. The respective state figures are 95

Murdered couple had moved from Mass. to start new life here

Friends and acquaintances of Kimberly Shriver and Christopher Greska described them as a quiet, family-oriented couple who were deeply committed to her two young daughters and to their church.

Mrs. Shriver, who was originally from the Bethel area, had returned here over a year ago, after spending a number of years in Massachusetts and Michigan. Mr. Greska, originally from Tyngsboro, Mass., had moved to the area to be with her.

The couple both worked at GAMM II and had only recently purchased the house off Middle Intervale Road in which they were killed. "They were really just starting to pull their lives together here," said one friend.

Ms. Shriver's brother, Barry Coolidge, had been employed since July as a loader operator at P.H. Chadbourne. He was described by an acquaintance as "just a normal young guy, a very good kid who never got into any trouble."

Mr. Coolidge had moved into the Bird Hill house only two days before he was shot. His stepfather, Gary Rainey—who allegedly shot him—had previously lived in the house and was reportedly involved in an ownership dispute over the property with his estranged wife Madelyn. Mr. Coolidge's mother, reportedly, friends had warned Mr. Coolidge against staying in the disputed house, but he had reassured them he could take care of himself.

Mr. Rainey, who maintains a Locke Mills post office address and whose car is registered in Maine, had moved to Haverhill, Mass., about two months ago. He worked there as a die cutter.

In newspaper reports from Massachusetts, Mr. Rainey's co-workers portrayed him as a quiet man who kept to himself, but people who know him here paint a very different picture.

According to a number of acquaintances, Mr. Rainey was regarded as a violent man whose behavior had become increasingly erratic since his estrangement from his wife.

Local residents unrattled as earthquake rumbles through western Maine

For most people in the Bethel area, last Thursday's earthquake was nothing to get shook up about.

The moderate quake, measured at 3.9 on the Richter scale, was centered just over the New Hampshire border, approximately five miles northeast of Berlin.

There were no reports locally of damage from the quake, although some people in the Berlin area did submit claims for cracked walls and ceilings.

In the Bethel area it rumbled through shortly after 9 a.m. unnoticed by many people, while others thought the brief shaking was due to trucks or trains, or workers moving equipment.

"I'm so used to blasting at the mountain, that I didn't even notice it," said Diane Friedlander, who lives near Sunday River Skiway.

She said, however, that she was thankful she had nothing in the oven at her Bread and Butter Bakery, on Main Street, when the quake went through. As is was, her completed tarts and turnovers were unshaken by the disturbance and nary a roll nor muffin collapsed.

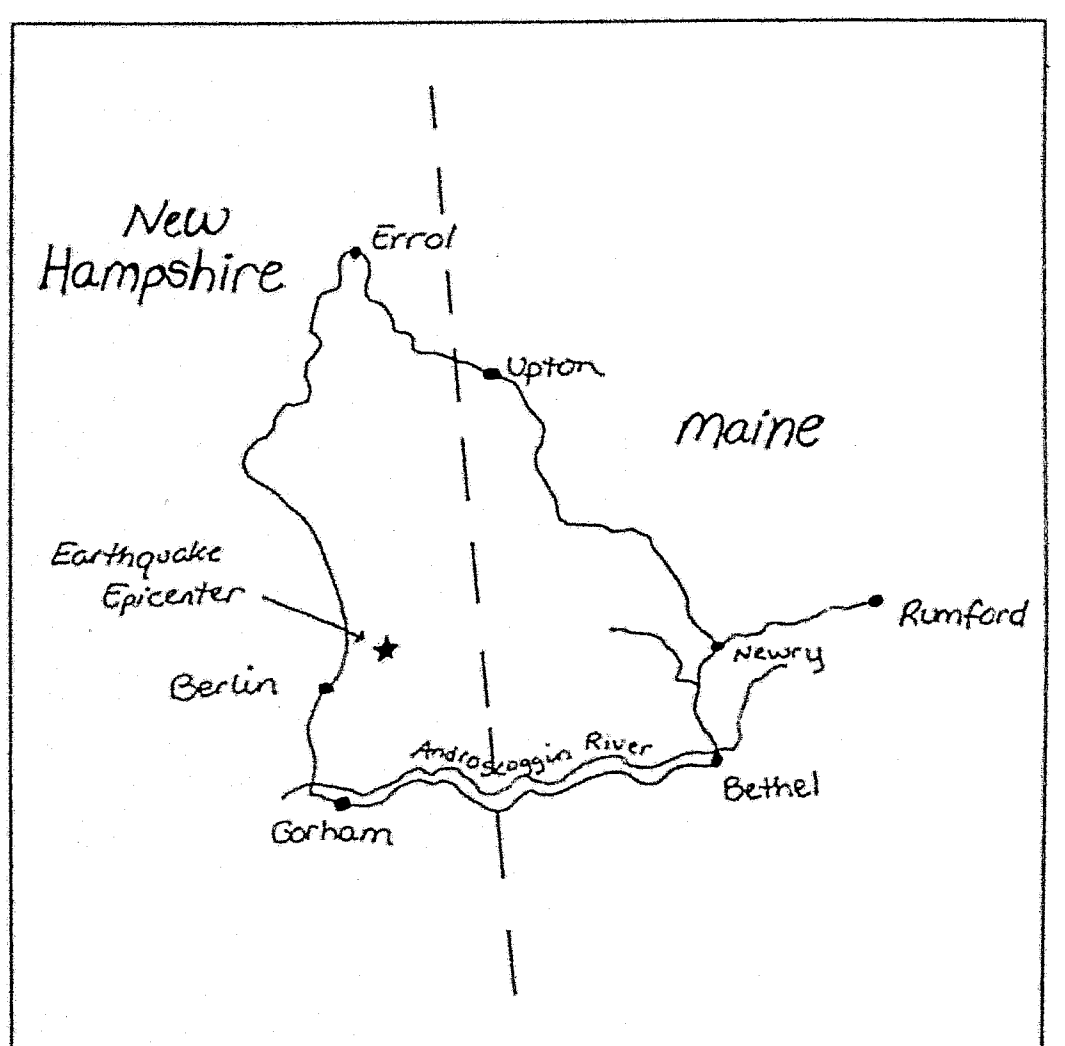

In other parts of Bethel the quake was a bit more defined. "I heard it coming like a freight train," said Cathryn Lovejoy, who lives on the Flat Road in West Bethel. "It shook the house and moved on."

Since moving into her home nearly 30 years ago, Mrs. Lovejoy has grown used to the quakes, which are fairly regular occurrences, though not usually as strong as last week's.

Mike Foley, a geologist with the Maine Geological Survey, said Maine gets about 10 quakes a year, but most are too small to be noticed without a seismograph. They are most common in the Lewiston-Oxford Plains area, near Milo and around Passamaquoddy Bay, he said.

The east coast in general, and Maine in particular generally does not suffer from destructive earthquakes, he said. But there was a major earthquake off Cape Ann, Mass., in the late 1700s and another near Charleston, S.C. in the 1800s.

It wouldn't be out of the question, Mr. Foley said, for the next major quake on the east coast to occur in or near Maine, "but I wouldn't waste a lot of time worrying about it."

THE EPICENTER of last Thursday's earthquake was located just across the Maine/New Hampshire state line, approximately five miles northeast of Berlin, N.H. No damage was reported locally, and it was only later that many people realized the rumbling they felt about 9 a.m. wasn't caused by trucks or trains, but by the crust of the earth shifting.

Opinions

Greenwood sets an example

Greenwood voters, at their recent special town meeting, did what many other local towns should be doing. They decided to spend $40,000 to purchase a town beach.

That's a lot of money. But if you consider that the $40,000 investment will serve Greenwood families for hundreds of years to come, it's really not very expensive at all.

Not purchasing a public beach when given the opportunity is, on the other hand, a very expensive mistake. For then you are depriving future generations of the good fun and fond memories that come from a few hours at the beach on a hot, summer day.

Town governments are supposed to provide for the safety and well-being of local citizens. Forty thousand dollars doesn't go very far when it comes to taking care of town roads. And then the next year you have to provide the same again. But you purchase a beach and then you have it for many, many years of sunbathers and smiles. That's a lot of well-being.

Bethel had the chance a few years back to purchase a beach, and declined it. There is now again talk of trying to obtain a beach. It is hoped that if the offer is made, the opportunity will be seized. bfw

Don't debase hunting

To hear the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife tell it, hunters are people who go out into the woods with plowshares and pruning hooks. Every hunting season the department reports that hunters "harvested" such and such number of moose, or bear, or deer—as if the hunters had planted them earlier and then gone off with mowers and hayrakes to bring in the harvest.

A hunter is not a farmer. Farmers harvest; hunters kill. This is not a value judgment; this is an accurate description. Hunting has gone on ever since humans have trod the earth. It puts food on the table, promotes human bonding—whether among tribal groups, between fathers and sons, or among friends—and keeps herds from growing out of control.

State agencies are doing a good job of regulating the moose and deer herds in the state. They should not do the animals—and the hunters—a disservice by trying to make of the sport something it is not. When an animal is shot, it bleeds warm blood onto the cold ground. Its life ebbs from its body, leaving a carcass that is then gutted and cut apart and put in the freezer.

The sensitive hunter is aware that one animal dies in order to feed others. This is a ritual as old as time itself.

Humans are one of the many living creatures that share this planet. Humans butcher barnyard animals in slaughterhouses and kill wild animals in the forests. While there are some squeamish people who would like to believe that steaks grow in plastic wrappers, the Department of Inland Fisheries should not be among them. Language should be used to clarify, not confuse. One "harvests" corn and potatoes. One "kills" moose and deer. The state bureaucrats should be told to use the proper terms. bfw

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I had an experience the other day that, to me, pointed out what is dramatically wrong with our family structure, and therefore our country.

I was asked to help out at a local church to babysit for about a dozen children. The majority of these children were under 4 years of age, and several were only babies. At one time or another at least half of these kids were screaming for their mothers. They were inconsolable, and nothing I could do would comfort them. They wanted and needed their mothers and nobody or nothing could pacify these babies.

I asked the other adult caretaker of the group what the class was that these mothers were taking that took them away from their children. The answer just floored me: it was a class on parenting!

What is wrong with this country when a mother leaves her baby with a stranger to take a class on how to be a good parent?

The answer is simple—stay home with your kids and change the system so that these babies can have their mothers at home.

Enforce the child support enforcement system so that absent fathers will be forced to accept their responsibilities. Get the people who are using A.F.D.C. for beer and partying, rather than for their children, off of A.F.D.C. Also remove those mothers who have four and five children by the same man, who is living in the home and working. These people collect millions of dollars a year that could be spent on helping really needy mothers who choose to stay home and raise their children alone. That in itself is a hard job, and doing it on what A.F.D.C. pays is absurd.

If a mother chooses to work and leave her kids with a responsible family member or babysitter, fine; that's her choice. What is terribly wrong is being

To the Editor:

I live in a small town in Pennsylvania similar to Bethel in size. I had the opportunity to enjoy several days visiting a relative in your community two weeks ago. It had been over 20 years since I'd vacationed in Maine and found it extremely refreshing. However, one incident had bothered me numerous times since I returned home and prompted me to write you. I feel an injustice to the Sudbury Inn is taking place.

After dining out on Oct. 7, my nephew suggested we stop at the Sudbury Inn to have a couple of beers and listen to the band. He informed me it would be the last weekend for live entertainment for an indefinite time due to complaints filed by its next door neighbor concerning loud music. I could certainly sympathize with the neighbor.

We arrived at the Suds and within a half-hour the two-piece band started playing its country tunes. Realizing everyone was enjoying their efforts, the duo didn't take any breaks until a Bethel police officer arrived to have the volume reduced because of another noise complaint from Bob (Saunders) next door. At this point my sympathy shifted from the neighbor to the Sudbury Inn.

The volume was not a problem. I have been in many bars and night clubs where you had to shout at the person sitting next to you and still have difficulty being heard. This was not the case at the Suds on Oct. 7.

For readers who have never been in the bar, it is located in the basement. For forced to work at a low-paying job and leaving her babies with strangers.

Something must be done, and soon, so that the kids in this country can be raised by the women who planned for them, and gave birth to them, and want to stay home and nurture them.

A note from the publisher

Let me say first off that I am not a card-carrying member of the ACLU—the American Civil Liberties Union. But let me also say that I am certainly glad that there is such a group. Had it been around at the birth of our nation (it started in the 1920s), it's possible that our nation wouldn't have required a civil war to end the tyranny of slavery.

The ACLU is the one group in our society that vigorously supports the Constitution—no matter what the consequences. This can be very dangerous politics, but it is very courageous civil rights.

For example, the ACLU supports Oliver North in his argument that he cannot be tried for alleged crimes that he admitted to in a Congressional inquiry. The reason being that he was forced to testify to Congress, through the Congress's power to subpoena testimony—but under immunity. Under the Constitution, a person cannot be compelled to testify against himself. Therefore the criminal case should be thrown out, the ACLU argues.

It matters not that Col. North had little regard for the Constitution, believing that it was all right to purchase arms for the Contras with federal funds that had not been appropriated by Congress. The ACLU doesn't judge his conduct—only the fact that the Constitution should not be further disregarded by illegally prosecuting him.

The ACLU also defends the right of the American Nazi Party and other extremist groups to speak out. It matters not that these groups preach hatred and—if they ever were to come into power—would certainly not respect the rights of the minorities they rail against.

Once again, the ACLU does not judge the group or individual, nor the group's or individual's message. The ACLU looks only to see if such speech is protected by the Constitution.

The ACLU takes the view—as does the Constitution—that the majority does not need protecting; it is the minority that needs protecting. And this means generally taking politically unpopular stands.

In societies where there is no group to defend minorities, there soon ceases to be any voice but the voice of the dictatorship—whether it be the dictatorship of a party, or the dictatorship of the proletariat, or the dictatorship of a single individual.

Martin Niemöller, originally a supporter of the Nazis in Germany, said: "In Germany they came first for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. They came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time no one was left to speak up."

George Bush is wrong to criticize the ACLU. If he envisions an America where the only voice will be his voice, or an America where it will be un-American to refuse to recite the Pledge of Allegiance (as some Seventh Day Adventists do), then he envisions an America far different from the nation brought into being by the Constitution.

Was my face red last week when one of my co-workers, George Gibson, asked me if I didn't know his last name. Of course I know your last name, I responded. Well, how come you called me George Wilson in the photo caption (standing by the equipment we had taken out of our shop)?

How come indeed? I don't know. Sometimes when you're typing along, especially with something familiar, your fingers will type a word you weren't thinking. Or, at least, my fingers do. For the life of me I'd like to know how the music could have been offensive to someone next door with their windows closed.

I think it is sad to see the Sudbury Inn suffer losses as a result of this individual. Without live entertainment, patrons will certainly visit other establishments. As a result, I imagine layoffs of employees are inevitable until this is resolved. I offer the Suds best wishes in their hopefully speedy appeal on this issue and return to live entertainment.

To the Editor:

Today I went to school with a feeling of dread. I was reluctant to face the sadness and helplessness I would encounter at school after the recent tragedy in our community. I found those feelings and so much more. I found a staff united in their compassion and desire to help not only those children touched directly by the tragedy, but also those for whom it was a painful reminder of lost loved ones.

I was grateful for the combined efforts of our guidance counselors, Lynn Boschetti and Dave Walton, to provide the support the staff and children needed. The quick response of Becky Hardy, from the Bethel Area Health Center, was also greatly appreciated.

Lastly, the sensitivity and compassion of my colleagues and the children at CPS was tremendous. I am proud to be working with teachers of such caliber and grateful also that my children are in such a caring school system.

Puppet show at Gould Thursday, open to public

Figures of Speech Theatre, of Freeport, will perform "Imagination" at Gould Academy on Thursday, Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m., in Bingham Auditorium. Admission is free and open to the public.

With its roots in puppetry, "Imagination" is an unlikely history of the world, from the Big Bang through the Space Age, told entirely by household objects. The undersea world is inhabited by ice trays and rubber gloves. Shoe stretchers dance on stage. Interplanetary Christmas tree ornaments are visited by a toaster-oven space ship.

This irreverent animated theatre encourages people of all ages to leave their rational minds at home and give their imaginations a good healthy workout.

Theatre which uses found objects rather than sculpted materials has recently created a surge of interest and controversy among European puppeteers. This fascination is largely due to the ability of the ordinary object to transform, evoke and become extraordinary in the hands of a perceptive puppeteer.

During the summer of 1984 an intensive six week workshop exploration of the subject was conducted at the International Puppetry Institute in Charlottesville, France. John and Carol Farrell, of Figures of Speech Theatre, participated in this program with funding from the Institute, the French government and the International Puppetry Union (UNIMA). There, with the help of Europe's finest puppeteers, the Farrells began to develop their "Imagination."

Carol Farrell says that a different story unfolds in the mind of each person who sees "Imagination." "We feel that when people go to the theatre, they are looking for a more direct experience than 2-D media can give them. In 'Imagination,' by creating a symbolic world of recognizable 'junk' we offer the audience just enough ambiguous imagery so that they can enjoy playing with the workings of their own minds. It's a sort of 'active watching' which doesn't happen in front of a television set."

Figures of Speech is a theatre of national as well as international reputation. In 1986, while performing at EXPO 86 in Vancouver, co-directors John and Carol Farrell were awarded the coveted UNIMA Citation of Excellence, the "Oscar" of the puppet.

example, if I'm typing the name "Beth" when I re-read my copy I'll usually find that I've typed "Bethel". I think I'm not the only one whose fingers move seemingly on their own. I recall a news item we received in the office a year or so ago in which the writer mis-named his mother. (We corrected the error.)

I should have caught my error. While the mistake is explainable, it is not excusable, and I apologize for it. I expect we'll have a photo in next week's paper of our printers, Kim Stinson and George Gibson, with our new printing equipment. Read the caption carefully and see if I get the names correct.

The Associated Press picked up on a story in the Bangor Daily News about a Bryant Pond man. The story details the idea of Dennis Corrin to build a bridge between Russian Siberia and American Alaska, across the 50-mile wide Bering Straits.

There had, of course, been a land bridge between Asia and America prior to the melting of the last ice age, and Mr. Corrin suggests that a modern bridge would do the same as the ancient land bridge did—facilitate the exchange of people, goods, and ideas from one continent to another.

John Praigg, the former owner of the Locke Mills Marketplace, apparently treated the federal government the same as he treated local businesses—that is, he didn't pay his bills.

You'll recall that Mr. Praigg left the area, in disgrace and in bankruptcy, over a year ago, suddenly stopping by the Savings Bank one morning to turn in the key of the store. As far as is known, no one here has heard from him since.

Neither has the IRS, and they're unhappy. An IRS agent was in town last week looking for clues that would point to the mysterious Mr. Praigg's current whereabouts.

You'll recall that The Citizen reported earlier that his mysterious past was, according to an informed source, the product of being involved in the federal government's witness protection program. The IRS agent confirmed that her office had also heard the same story. She could not, however, find out why he was in the program—if, in fact, he was. It seems Mr. Praigg will continue to be a mystery, unless the IRS manages to find him.

I'm happy to report that the new owners of the Marketplace—Dave Mero and David Brunnett—are doing a better job than Mr. Praigg. They're providing good service to their customers, treating their employees well, and paying their bills. And they seem to be having a good time, despite the long hours required in running one's own business.

Bethel was in the news this week, and not in a manner that any of us like. The senseless beating and killing of two Bethel residents, and the wounding of a third person in Locke Mills, is a sure sign that living in a small town does not insulate one from violence.

The greatest tragedy is to the children and the other family members of the deceased. But the entire community must also wonder that the bonds of family and community could be so fragile that they could break and permit someone to get angry to the point where killing seemed the only option.

Bethel selectmen

400 feet southerly of the intersection of Tyler Street—that is, near the American Legion Hall.

The selectmen will formally pass the changes to the traffic ordinance at their Nov. 7 meeting, after the changes are typed up.

As for the landfill rules and regulations, the selectmen decided to impose the fees as proposed, that is, $5 for each white good and $2 for each tire. But they decided against ordering people to dismantle their old mattresses before bringing them to the landfill. "I can't think of a single person in town who would take apart a mattress [before bringing it to the landfill]," noted Chairman Arlan Jodrey.

However the board did retain the requirement that bedsprings and all furniture—stuffed and solid—be disassembled. Shirts, tree trunks, limbs and branches are to be cut into lengths not to exceed 10 feet.

As in the case of the traffic ordinance, the new landfill rules are to be formally voted on at the Nov. 7 meeting.

The selectmen will likely meet this Thursday, Oct. 27, to sign an $80,000 contract with DuBois & King for work on sewer plant repairs. The work itself is expected to cost about $400,000. The repairs would not completely remedy the problems of the ailing sewer plant, but would be expected to get it to the point where it could handle moderate input without polluting the river. The town last week formally applied for a $480,000 FmHA loan to pay for the design work and the repair work.

Town officials are anxious to sign the design contract as soon as possible in order to indicate to DEP that the town is willing to do whatever is necessary to get the plant into compliance—and thus induce DEP to remove the moratorium against new sewer hookups. The town manager is expected to hammer out a consent agreement with the DEP and the Attorney General's office in the next few weeks.

In other matters, the board voted, 5-0, to take up to $1,000 from the assessors' field work budget account to pay for help in completing the 1988 assessment work. The town manager said tax bills will not get out on time. He said taxpayers will probably not be able to pay their taxes by the deadline, and therefore penalties for missing the deadline would not be charged.

He added that the town office would appreciate any approximate tax payments even before the bills go out.

Local hunters bring home the steaks in moose hunt

Area hunters did well in last week's state moose hunt. Among those coming home with kills were Bill Howe, of Bryant Pond, Chris Tyler, of Locke Mills, Billy Murphy, of West Bethel, Mike Bean, of Milton Plantation, Olive Whitten, of Roxbury Pond, Linda Daye, of Hanover, and Danny Long, Kim Cyr, and Nick Lavorgna—all of Rumford.

Local meatcutters—Bruce Swan in Hanover and Tom House in Bryant Pond—said they had many more requests for cutting up moose than they were able to accommodate.

The success of local hunters was mirrored statewide, with hunters killing a record 930 moose. The former record was set last year, at 891. Only 1,000 permits, are given out each year, by lottery—900 to Maine hunters and 100 to out-of-state hunters.

The largest moose killed this year was a bull weighing 1,015 pounds. Local hunters did not bring home any huge animals. Most of them ranged between 450 and 700 pounds.

Experts testify that H-Q power not needed in state

Significantly more electricity can be saved—through design and aggressive implementation of demand-side management programs than Central Maine Power Company has projected in its current forecasts, said five energy experts in a recent hearing. Demand-side programs deal with consumers' use of electricity, rather than production or purchase of more electricity.

The five experts testified in September during the Public Utility Commission's investigation of a proposed purchase of hydropower by Central Maine Power Company. The company wants to buy 300 to 600 megawatts of power over a 28-year period from Hydro-Quebec, to be transported over a line that would run through western Maine.

The Natural Resources Council and the Conservation Law Foundation (CLF) of New England brought the specialists in to the case to demonstrate that energy conservation and improved efficiency can delay or possibly replace the need for more power from Canada.

Last May, the Council and CLF submitted written testimony from these experts that showed that CMP should double its estimate of electricity savings that can be obtained economically through its management activities. The two groups set forth an extensive array of conservation and load management programs, including switching residential customers from electric water and space heat to other fuels, improving the design and construction of new commercial and industrial buildings; retrofitting of residences, commercial buildings and industrial facilities; and setting up load management cooperatives for commercial and small industrial customers.

"The testimony took into account successful electricity savings programs which are operating in other parts of the country—mainly the Pacific Northwest—and a detailed analysis done by the Council in 1987 of the technical potential for saving electricity," said Brownie Carson, the Council's executive director. "By analyzing the best utility programs and tailoring the concepts to Maine's needs, the state could develop the most comprehensive energy management program in the country."

The Council and CLF had concluded that CMP could realize twice its estimated savings by aggressively pursuing the options and that it was entirely possible that conservation and load management could preclude the need for the Canadian purchase altogether. "At a minimum, the purchase will act as a disincentive to conservation, since it is always much easier for the utility to sign on the dotted line and increase power purchases over the transmission line than it is to harness savings on the demand side," said Mr. Carson.

At the September PUC hearing, the witnesses expanded on their written testimony and responded to questions from the commission, CMP and other intervenors. "Their testimony was impressive," said Mr. Carson. "There was no doubt that our witnesses were experts in designing and running effective conservation programs and that the programs are working."

Joe Chaisson, the author of the Council's 1987 energy efficiency study and energy consultant to the Council and CLF, said that CMP's proposed five-year plan, if aggressively implemented, is a good start but doesn't go far enough in tapping the affordable energy savings available in Maine. He is worried that long-term purchase like the proposed Hydro-Quebec contract could act as a "serious disincentive" to the full and determined implementation of CMP conservation and efficiency programs.

Chaisson testified about work he is doing in Connecticut and Massachusetts where the utilities, the Conservation Law Foundation and others are collaborating on design and implementation of energy programs. He called for the commission to order CMP to engage in a similar effort with the Council, CLF and other interested parties. The Council and CLF had tried without success earlier this year to establish such a process with CMP on a voluntary basis.

beginning to show results, he said, as scores in these areas have begun to upward.

The state's report card for the Oxford School District, SAD #17, shows that est results are very close to the state age, but its per-pupil expenditure for -87 was only $2,382—$343 below the tricts in the state and is able to take antage of many economies of scale.

Oxford County's growth population moderate

While Maine's population grew by 5.5 cent from 1980 to 1987, Oxford Couns grew by just 3.2 percent, according figures released by the Department of bor.

Immigration of people from away ac-ounted for one-third of the state's wth, according to the figures. The wth in Oxford County was also one-rd due to the arrival of people from eal country.

While the state's population was imated at 1,187,000 in 1987 (an inase of 62,000 from 1980), Oxford Coun-had an estimated 50,600 people (up 00 from 1980).

The fastest growing county in the state, ween 1980 and 1987, was York Coun-y, with a population growth rate of 16.7 cent—74 percent of it due to immigra-n. Lincoln County had the highest rate immigration—81 percent of its populaion growth.

The county showing the least growth as Aroostock County, which actually st 3.4 percent of its population.

Murder suspect

"Name" coming out of it, and saw him
"hurt" her mother's boyfriend. The younger daughter then hid in a closet, while the older daughter, 11, hid under a bed. While in hiding, the younger daughter heard her step-grandfather say, "Kim and Chris are so stupid." And then he left.

The bodies that Warden Brackett found when he arrived on the scene were those of Kimberly Shriver, 29, and Christopher Greska, 31. According to the chief medical examiner's report, Ms. Shriver had been shot in one leg, the abdomen, the right shoulder, and the back of the head. She was then beaten on the head with a blunt instrument, "probably when already close to death from the gunshot wounds."

Mr. Greska had been shot three times in the head. He also had been beaten about the head—causing deep skull fractures—before death.

According to testimony taken from Wade Rainey, his brother Gary appeared at the Rainey residence around 4 p.m.
Saturday and asked him (Wade), "Do you want to shake the hands of a murderer?" He then said, "I just killed three people and a dog."

In fact, the first shooting victim, Barry Coolidge, did not die. He was rushed to Stephens Memorial Hospital, in Norway, with gunshot wounds to the head, hands and chest. His condition is listed as serious. He told an attending physician, according to the affidavit, "My stepfather shot me."

Wade Rainey told investigators he told his brother to give himself up, which Gary Rainey did, at about 6 p.m., in the Oxford County Sheriff's Office parking lot. The suspect drove up in a black Ford Crown Victoria, with Maine plates, and surrendered to Det. Lehan.

Investigators have confiscated a weapon, presumably a .22 calibre pistol.
The affidavit states that spent .22 bullets and empty cartridges were found at the murder scene in Bethel as well as the attempted murder scene in Locke Mills. A witness of the Locke Mills shooting told investigators she saw a man running away, putting a handgun in his pocket.

On the basis of the affidavit, District Court Judge John Sheldon found probable cause to hold the suspect under arrest. The judge explained that the charges are preliminary and that formal charges must await a finding by the grand jury, which next meets Nov. 29.
"The judge said he might, prior to that date, hold a more detailed probable cause hearing. Meanwhile, a formal bail hearing was set for this Friday."

For the time being he acceded to the assistant attorney general's request and declined to set bail. Suspect Rainey said, in a high-pitched voice, "I don't want bail. I have no place to go."

Mr. Rainey, a short, well-built man with gray hair—ballooning on top—and thick glasses, was brought into court under heavy guard by state and county officers. He was freshly shaven and dressed in Lee brown cords, a white undershirt and blue tennis shoes. After he was brought to the defense table, his handcuffs were removed and troopers stood on two sides of him.

Although his most recent address is Haverhill, Mass., he maintains a postoffice address in Locke Mills. Asked by the judge what he does for a living, he said,
"I change jobs about every other month."

Following the hearing, he was taken back to the Oxford County Jail.

If found guilty, Mr. Rainey could be sentenced to life in prison.

School Board

urging the board to reconsider the early release, and a representation of teachers extolling the virtues of the Wednesday professional development time.

Jane Rolfe, of Bethel, repeated the charge that by losing the Wednesday afternoon classroom time, district pupils were losing out educationally. "Let the children have their time in school," she urged the board. "They will learn more in the classroom than out."

"We are here to ask you for a compromise in time," said Carroll Murphy, of Bethel, "not to throw out the program.
You can just ignore all of us and vote in your original manner, but that can create a rift between parents and teachers that I can guarantee will grow into an unbridgeable chasm when the new budget is set."

Arguing for retaining the policy, teachers Ellen Greeke and Joanne Shimamura, both from the Woodstock School, described the improved communication and coordination within the school that were possible now that teachers and other staff members have more time to talk together.

Both argued that they already put in many "extra hours" during the week, and that it was unfair to expect them to take more time from their own families in order to pursue professional development.

Mrs. Rolfe found that argument unconvincing. Pointing out that she and many other people spend their own time, rather than company time, on professional development, she said: "I think it's expected that you do these things if you want to better yourself, if you want to get promotions and keep your salary up there."

The parents opposed to the policy had earlier presented the board with a petition signed by nearly 500 district residents urging the board to reconsider the policy. At Monday's meeting Board Member Betsy White, of Andover, noted that 34 people, most from Andover, had signed a counter petition supporting the policy.

Support for the policy was also expressed in letters to the board from teachers in the district's four elementary schools, including seven members of the Andover Elementary School staff who wrote: "We, as a staff, feel the need for growth in the field of education. The list of opportunities this enables us to meet are obvious to anyone employed in the field of education."

Following more than an hour of discussion, the board voted 14-1 (with Rex Thurston, of Andover, opposed) to continue the policy, at least through its first review period. Carroll Murphy and Jane Rolfe agreed to serve on the committee to study alternatives.

In other action, the board approved forming another committee, this one to study the feasibility of reviving the football program at Telstar Regional High School.

In personnel action, the board approved the following people as substitute teachers: John MacMunn, Betsy Raymond, Edward Robinson and Donald Sheehan.

Board members Raymond Harrington, of Greenwood, and Denise Putnam, of Woodstock, did not attend Monday evening's meeting, which was held at the Andover Elementary School.

THE UNICORN FLOWER SHOP & GARDEN CENTER is now open for business at its brand new Rte. 26 location. The business, run by Ann and Lisa Friedlander, intends to serve a wide variety of needs, from landscaping and nursery to cut flowers.

Outing Club ski sale
this weekend at Gould

Organizers for this weekend's eighth annual Bethel Outing Club ski sale at Gould Academy report that nearly 5,000 items, much of it new ski equipment from northern New England's top ski shops, will be available at the sale. The sale will take place Friday, from 6:30-9:30 p.m. and Saturday, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m., in the Gould Academy fieldhouse.

Outing Club volunteers have been busy preparing hundreds of price tags and inventory sheets and readying the Gould Academy fieldhouse for the crowds of skiers who traditionally line up at the doors on Friday afternoon for a first look at the new and used ski equipment.

Individuals wishing to sell equipment may bring it anytime during the sale, after 3 p.m. on Friday. Contact Kirk Siegel, at 824-2196, days, or 824-3436, evenings, if you would like to help out at the sale or if you would like more information.

Newry Planning Board
meets Wednesday, Nov. 2

The Newry Planning Board is expected to sign a revised plan for Sunday River Ski Resort's townhouses at White Cap and at Locke Mountain when it meets next Wednesday, Nov. 2.

Also on the agenda is a discussion of fire fighting access to multi-family housing projects in town.

The planners are also expected to update the town's Comprehensive Plan.
The board will meet at the town office,
at 7 p.m.

CARD OF THANKS

We will be forever thankful for the loving, caring and spiritual support that has been extended to us in the loss of Sally, our daughter and our sister. Beautiful cards, prayers, flowers, plants, telephone calls, food and visits have been showered upon us to comfort us. As a Bethel family, our roots are here and will always be. Evidence of this through the above have come from relatives, neighbors and friends, old and new, former co-workers and managers of Casco Northern, our classmates and Sally's classmates. Special organizations, a Special Support Group and the Albany Congregational Church members, the West Parish Congregational Church members, and its Evening Bell Choir, members of other local churches have all been offering prayers and love for months during her illness. To Rev. Norman Rust for his moving and personal services and to Rev. Jean Bass for her beautiful closing prayers at the graveyard services, we will never forget.
For all the comforting and loving deeds, we offer our deep and sincere appreciation. To those who made donations to the St. Mary's Hospital Rehab Unit and to those who gave to other memorials that are special to the family, it will be most rewarding. Especially to Sally's dear classmates who have supported her, prayed with her, and loved her and helped her to laugh through the past several months. Nancy, Ruthie, Sue and Betsy, she was so blessed to have you.
Again to all you dear, dear people, God bless you for your love and devotion.

DEP set to fine Inn
for muddying Mill Brook

The state Department of Environmental Protection, in conjunction with the state Attorney General's office, is working out a fine to be levied against The Bethel Inn for siltation of Mill Brook.

The violations took place last October during construction of the new golf course, according to DEP officials.

The violations stemmed not only from muddying the brook, but from Inn officials not abiding by the terms of the permit they received to do earth moving near the brook. According to Don Kale, head of the DEP's enforcement office in Portland, the Inn had a permit to expand the golf course and they had an elaborate erosion control plan. "But they didn't do it and wound up silting up the brook," he said. "There was quite a mess."

Deborah Webster-Pierce, of the DEP's enforcement division, said the Inn immediately took steps to rectify the situation once it was brought to their attention. They stabilized the exposed soil and removed the soil that had washed into the brook, she said.

The consent agreement now being worked out will take into consideration the cooperativeness of Inn officials in rectifying the situation. Ms. Webster-Pierce said, but a fine will also be levied.
She declined to say how large a fine had been recommended. She said an announcement would be made in the next few weeks.

News from

Woodstock School

From the desk of the principal, What a great turnout for our annual open house last Tuesday evening. It was great to see so many Woodstock families taking the time to visit all of our classrooms. Our children and teachers are certainly doing some fantastic things! Many thanks to the WPTO for providing refreshments. Congratulations to Mrs. Caddigan and her students on their excellent presentation entitled "I am Special." Despite the weather the evening was every bit as successful as we had all hoped it would be.

I would also like to thank the WPTO for their recent purchase of complete uniforms for our sports programs. The soccer team was the first to benefit from their generosity, wearing the kelly green and white uniforms in their recent game at Crescent Park. They looked great!

Monday, Nov. 14, will be the date of our annual Parent Teacher Conferences. The conferences will begin at noon and last until 8 p.m. School will not be in session that day. Further information will be sent home in the next two weeks.

Don't forget the Halloween party Monday, Oct. 31. It will begin at 6 p.m. and last until 7:30 p.m. This event is open to all Woodstock School students and preschoolers only. All preschoolers must be accompanied by an adult.

Northwest Bethel

By CLARICE GIBSON

October 18 it rained and the wind blew making it appear like a shower of leaves. In places the leaves had fallen onto the road which makes for slippery conditions, especially when one has to apply one's brakes. The next day it did clear up but was chilly. Then Thursday while talking to Joyce Stearns (trying to get all of the out-of-town relatives) we both felt and heard an unusual noise. Joyce wondered if it might not be an earthquake and sure enough on the six o'clock news it said that we had had an earthquake. We usually don't think of them in our region, so sometimes we don't realize for awhile what has happened.

Elsie Davis, grandmother of Becky Shaw, was in the hospital from Oct. 13 to the 16th.

A concert October 28 of Walt Mitchell and Co., comprised of four musicians, will be presented by the Mahoeuse Arts Council. Beck Shaw is on the publicity.

Pip and Ada Cummings (formerly of New Jersey) are staying with their daughter, Macky Chapman and family, while the Cummings are getting a house built on Mt. Abram in Locke Mills.

Nick Chapman, son of Howard and Macky Chapman, is playing soccer at Telstar Middle School and his team is playing in the finals.

Althea Brown and Ann Dunbar of Oxford went shopping in Lewiston and Auburn recently.

Sam and Ginny McCoy's apolloosa, Washakie, is now back at the McCoy's at his new home. Washakie was lost for several days when the barn burned and has been at friend's until the barn was rebuilt.

North Paris

By DORIS C. LAWRENCE

October 29 there will be a ham supper at North Paris hall 5 to 6 p.m. The menu will be ham, mashed potato, peas, squash, salads, rolls, biscuits and home made pies. This is the last supper of the season.

I took a fruit basket to Maud Harta, who is still feeling under the weather after her bout with pneumonia.

The "Root" Lawrences went to Mr. and Mrs. Norman Millett's October 17 to help celebrate Stevie's birthday. Others there were Mr. and Mrs. Roger LaCroix, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Thayer and Jason, Maureen Heath, Amanda and Jeremy and Kim Brown. Birthday cake and ice cream were served.

Friday, Oct. 14, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Spencer and family, on the Trask Road, had as visitors Ray and Darlene Farrillo from Lowell, Mass. Mike worked with Ray before moving to Maine. They had a real nice visit.

West Paris Senior Citizens will meet at the Legion Hall Nov. 1 for their Thanksgiving dinner, put on by the Ledgewick Memorial Auxiliary. West Summer Senior Citizens will join them. Harlan Abbott, his father-in-law, and two other gentlemen went hunting in Rangeley the week of Oct. 10. It snowed every day.

Callers at the "Root" Lawrences' have been Mr. and Mrs. Odell Heath, Jimbo Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Coffin, Robert Anderson Sr. and Richard Felt. Thanks to Norman Millett, Dale Coffin and Mark Thayer for the load of kindling. Others visiting were Joe Vatcher and Joe Kalinowski.

Mrs. Marie Caldwell had her shoulder operated on again at Stephens Memorial Hospital.

CHOLESTEROL CLINIC AT SMH

Stephens Memorial Hospital, in Norway, will sponsor cholesterol screening for the community on Nov. 9 and 10, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., in the board room of the hospital. Screenings will be done on a walk-in basis.

The American Heart Association states that the three most important contributors to heart attack are high blood cholesterol level, high blood pressure and cigarette smoking.

The cholesterol screening is done by the fingerstick method. Results are available in three minutes and include counseling by registered nurses. Cholesterol screening will be available for persons ages 20-70 years for a fee of $4.

Bryan Murphy of Gorham, N.H.; Bob Fowler of Connecticut; Christopher Murphy of Waterville; Lee and Terry Blake of Augusta; Dean Murphy of Sebago Lake, plus many other relatives and friends attended. They had fellowship visitation following services at Joyce Stearns'. The food was prepared and served by friends and relatives.

His love is like the sunshine.
Radiating rays of light.
To guide us through this temporal world.
He's with us day and night.
So never fear the darkness of life.
That each of us must face.

And see us through with grace.

West Paris hunt club plans contest and dinner

Deer hunters in the West Paris area are invited to sign up for this, the 29th consecutive hunting contest and Hunters Club annual supper, to be held on the Friday evening following the close of deer hunting season.

This year the supper will be on Friday, Dec. 2, at the American Legion Hall, Maple Street, West Paris.

Hunters eligible to join must be from West Paris, or have a West Paris mailing address. Previous members, who have moved from West Paris, may still continue to join the club each year.

Highlights of the rules are as follows: the respective club teams are the "Poachers" and "Poker Hunters", and are chosen by team captains from those members joining the club each year.

Members registering the biggest buck and biggest doe serve as team captains for the next annual supper. In the event no doe is registered, the hunter getting the smallest buck becomes a team captain. It is the responsibility of the team captains to plan the supper and program, and obtain prizes to be awarded for the biggest buck and doe, and smallest deer (by weight).

The winning team is determined by the total weight of deer from each respective team, and all deer entered must be weighed and have been taken within the State of Maine.

Members of the losing team are solicited for food for the supper, assist in setting up the tables and preparing the meal, as well as serving as waiters. All members, who do not register a deer, must serve as dishwashers and work on the clean up detail.

Hunters must join prior to the first day of deer hunting to be eligible for prizes, and have the deer's weight included in the total weight for their respective teams. Those hunters signing up after the

ELEANOR GORDON GUILD

After a summer break the Eleanor Gordon Guild met in September at the Blake cottage, on Songo Pond, with Betty Blake and Evelyn Reed as hostesses. A delicious potluck dinner was served and a meeting and program followed.

Last Tuesday night the October meeting was held at the Methodist Church. Lisa Vonderheide, Peggy Wheeler, Muriel Butters and Doris Fraser were the hostesses. Plans for the candy table were discussed. President Betty Perkins appointed the following nominating committee to get officers for the next year—Lisa Vonderheide, Barbara Mahler and Violet Chretien.

As this was a craft meeting different crafts were shown and the committee had material ready so everyone made a "Life-Saver doll" and a "Christmas mouse." These could be taken home or donated to the Christmas fair. Halloween napkins, plates and decorations added to the tasty refreshments served.

The next meeting will be on a Wednesday night, Nov. 9, at the home of Debbie Adams. Popcorn balls will be made for the church sale being held the following Friday and Saturday, Nov. 11 and 12.

Team captains this year are Tim Poland and Jerrold Mason. Hunters may sign up at Trap Corner Store and Whitman's Market. The registration fee is $5 and the funds are used to defray the expenses of the supper, social hour and prizes.

Affordable housing group to hear research results

The affordable housing committee will be holding an open meeting on Nov. 2, with Valerie Lamont from the University of Southern Maine. Ms. Lamont will discuss the results of her research on affordable housing in the Bethel area.

All members of the community are invited to attend and discuss the problems of housing in the area.

A large crowd gathered for the harvest supper held here Thursday night. Mrs. Clyde Millett was in charge of it.

East Bethel

By MYRA FOSTER

There will be a meeting of Alder River Grange on November 7 at 7:30 p.m. for the purpose of giving up the charter or merging with another Grange. Let's have as good a representation as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hastings went to Hanover, N.H., last weekend to celebrate the 60th birthday of Virginia Gamble. Mrs. Al Bancroft and Mrs. Brenda Leighton were the ones who did the driving of the big trailer.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Welkes of Cumberland visited the Bartlett homestead October 16.

Mrs. Fay Kimball attended a toy party at the home of Mrs. Verlie Mason October 15.

Mr. and Mrs. John Foster of Andover visited me on October 16. Mr. and Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Richard Stearns of Rumford Corner and I were in South Paris October 19.

Doesn't seem to be much stirring around East Bethel this week. Guess people are getting ready for winter. And it was sure cold this morning, Oct. 21. It was 24 degrees on my porch when I looked at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Richard Stearns of Rumford Corner and I were shopping in Rumford Oct. 21.

Mrs. Warren Smith of Locke Mills took Albert Foster shopping Oct. 17.

SWOAM MEET NOV. 12

Small Woodland Owners Association of Maine (SWOAM) will hold its next meeting on Saturday, Nov. 12, at 9 a.m. at the Western Maine Nursery, in Fryeburg.

Participants will see the variety of trees raised at the nursery—Christmas, ornamentals and timber species—and observe how the seedlings are lifted for winter storage. They will also tour the shipping and storage facilities.

From the monument in the center of Fryeburg, take Route 5 south for half a mile and turn right at the sign for Western Maine Nursery.

HYDRO-QUEBEC IS TOPIC FOR BREAKFAST MEETING

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce will host a breakfast meeting Nov. 2, featuring a representative of Central Maine Power who will speak on one of the hot issues of the day—CMP's plan to import power from Hydro-Quebec in Canada.

The meeting will be at 7:30 a.m. at the Moses Mason House meeting room. Coffee, tea, fresh muffins will be served free of charge, although donations will be accepted.

We have modernized... but we haven't changed.

We are still the community bank we started out to be in 1866...serving local needs and local folks.

However, keeping up-to-date requires more space and more personnel. Back when computers and drive-ups were unknown and the financial world moved at a slower pace, Norway Savings could maintain smaller quarters.

Today, you expect more and you deserve more. We are responding by expanding our Norway office to provide more elbow room.

We will continue to be the same down-to-earth community bank we have been for 122 years. It's a promise.

Serving all of western Maine with offices in Bridgton, Fryeburg, Naples, South Paris, Norway and Windham.

JUGGLES AND BEAN clowned around at the Halloween Party in Newry Saturday. The two students, from Locke Mills, were a big hit with their very professional routines.

Andover East Andover
By HELEN SALWAY

The 1989 Andover Telstar seniors would like to thank all the townspeople who donated their bottles on Sat. Oct. 15. They made $289.05 in cans plus $12 in cash donations. This money goes to the scholarship fund.

The winner of the truckload of hardwood board ends was Lester Richardson. Total amount collected on the tickets was $183. This also goes into the scholarship fund.

On Tuesday, Oct. 18, Olive Whitten, of Roxbury Pond, while hunting in the Rangeley area, shot a cow moose weighing about 600 pounds.

The Ellis River Riders Club is having a Halloween dance Oct. 29. Costumes are not mandatory to go, but are necessary to win one of the three prizes: 1st, $25; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $15. Doors open at 9 p.m. and close at 1 a.m. Music will be supplied by Celebration. Last year's dance was a huge success and this one should be just as much fun. Tickets sold in advance and at the door are $5 per person. Also on that night the club will hold its first annual awards banquet at the C.E. Building. The club is selling booster tickets for a 20 week run, with the grand prize awarded at a St. Patrick's Day dance at the town hall on March 18. The proceeds are being collected with the hope of buying a generator and electric timer. Tickets can be bought from members of the Riders Club.

Mrs. Polly Johnston of Spanaway, Wash., has been visiting around town with Dottie Mills, Jane Rich, Bev Swan, Marion Coolidge and Marriotte Churchill, and in Rumford with Virginia Daigle and Dot Wing. She was here to meet her youngest daughter, Sgt. Joye Keiser, who is returning from Germany after a three year tour. They'll be leaving Tuesday to drive west with a stop in Easthampton, Mass., to see her brother-in-law, Bill Johnston, and a stop in Denver to see her sister, Mrs. Jo Berry and family. They also visited her aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Quinn of Norway and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Gibbs of Bethel.

Mrs. Elsie Hewey is with her daughter, Polly and Dick Johnston of Spanaway, Wash. She leaves Nov. 29 for Sebring, Fla., for the winter.

West Bethel

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Joel and Irene,
We received your note and we want you to know that we miss you and think of you often. We know that you will have a busy fall, but how about a visit to the "Mam-gers"?

West Bethel is still the place to be as far as we're concerned. There is so much to do, finishing the house. I'll still be saying that in 1990, cooking for the Grange, sewing and knitting for the church fair, making sweet breads and other goodies for our constant flow of guests. Thank goodness for elastic waists!

We had a visit from Tracey and David Robbins (their wedding was from our house in Mass., remember?) and 2-year old Christopher this week. It was a great visit for all of us, and Christopher's first visit to West Bethel. He is full of energy and curiosity, so most of the 48 hours was spent attending to, for, with, or on behalf of him. I remembered at the last minute that our house isn't child proof. So I ran around with a big bag, stuffing in knickknacks, breakables, untouchables, etc. I plan to leave it stashed away for a few weeks. If I don't miss the stuff, maybe I'll have a sale. We toured the countryside looking at cows and sheep and horses and ducks. And in the afternoon, Christopher and I made pies for the upcoming Grange supper. His visit was good practice for us, in the event that our "approaching senility" should be preceded by grandparenthood.

The Pleasant Valley Grange held its public supper the next day... a New England boiled dinner. Yum! You really missed a delicious sample of "Down Home Cooking." The Grange members spent the day simmering the corned beef, peeling and chopping vegetables, gathering up the 22 donated pies, baking rolls.

JACKSON-SILVER POST NEWS

Members of the Jackson-Silver Post and Auxiliary gathered at 6:30 p.m., Thursday evening, Oct. 20, for their "Boy and Girl State" banquet. There was a good attendance and an excellent program.

Following the banquet an informal business meeting of the Post was held. A number of reports were given and several matters of business discussed and voted on.

Among the reports given was one from Americanism officer Herbert Lyon. He reported on a ceremony recently at the Woodstock School when a large American flag was presented to the school by Comrade Lyon and members of the Post. The gift was very warmly received by the staff and pupils alike. A letter of acknowledgment and expression of thanks from the school principal, Mr. Murphy, was received by the Post. Another report was given by the service officer, Warren Smith. In his report he indicated that surviving spouses of deceased veterans may be eligible for certain benefits, according to new rules recently passed. Those who have spouses who were veterans are urged to get in touch with this service officer, who lives in Locke Mills, for further information. The meeting was adjourned until Thursday, Nov. 3, the date of the next meeting.

Love to all, C.B.

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Parents and friends, Halloween is approaching. The annual Agnes Gray Halloween parade will be held on Monday, Oct. 31, at approximately 1:30 p.m. The route will be the usual one: Main Street to Pioneer Street and up Kingsbury Street back to the school. Individual parties will then take place in the classrooms. We hope to see a good crowd at the parade!

On Monday, Oct. 24, the 6-graders attended the symphony at Portland City Hall to hear the "Many Moods of Beethoven."

The 1st-graders have a lot going on in their classroom. Mr. Grigsby, our home/school counselor, is beginning a stress management program for young children. The name of the program is Kiddie Q.R. The Q.R. is for quieting response. Adults are not the only ones who have to cope with stress. Children's problems are just as important as adult problems and they need to be taught how to deal with them.

The 1st-graders are studying about animals and plants in fall. They will be making leaf creatures using leaves that they have waxed. They are also learning about the I sound and an interesting indian is helping them out. This week they will be talking about safe ways to celebrate Halloween and will be making a Jack-O-Lantern.

The Kindergarten class is also studying and doing activities about fall and Halloween. They are making books and "Writing About Me." The books include pictures of themselves, their families, friends and their last birthday party. They are including the letter "A," which they are learning to write. They are learning all the sounds of "A" too.

The 4th and 5th-graders enjoyed their pizza parties this past Friday.

Several staff members at our school and throughout the district are participating in the Oxford Hills Health Action Program. Health Action programs are designed to provide awareness, motivation and support to establish and improve health and well-being. Physical fitness, seat belt use, not smoking, not drinking are just a few of the activities that we can strive for to improve our health and fitness. This program was piloted successfully at the Guy E. Rowe school last year and has been extended to all employees this year.

TRICK or TREAT

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

Our ability to perceive quality in nature begins, as in art, with the pretty. Then through successive stages it expands. At this time of year it's hard to tell with language what we see except to say it's an artist's haven.

As I walked the Spring Road this week, I listened to the chirp of the woods but found it hard to translate. I started a partridge near an aspen tree. Although aspens here are not prevalent as in the Colorado Rockies, the landscape would be dull without them. When the wind blows, they rock in unison. Their empty dark branches scratch at the sky. They have many uses. A few of many creatures that feed on them are the porcupine, deer, rabbit and beaver. The latter is especially fond of the bark and branches. They slash them away in the winter under the ice, near their home, then feed from the stockpile during the cold season. Partridges prefer the aspen buds over all other food.

At this time I was surprised, for buried deep in some branches, a pure delight, nestled a bird's nest. It was neatly suspended at the rim to a forking branch. Open at the top and built below the branches with an outside diameter of about three inches, it was woven with plant fibers and spider silk, lined with pine needles and fine grasses. What bird built this masterpiece? Possibly a vireo.

Halfway up the road, where I stopped to rest, I discovered I wasn't alone. A blue jay flew across the opening before me, a streak of blue flame. He perched in a branch nearby where I could admire his highway-man's mask. He showed gauntness and fortitude and his call announced to me, "It's a joy to be alive." I agreed with him for he showed no softness, just pure hardiness. He flashed away beneath the trees showing that he had no worries or cares as to his place in the wilderness.

The yellow leaves had made beds while red maples flaunted their skirts of flaming hair.

The sky was strewn with cloud puffs as I came to the top of Fox Hill and the mountainside held special charm.

I sat for a short time just to look. The very steep part was ahead and I thought of the strenuous task which Clyde did to dig the ditch where the pipe was laid to the spring at the top.

I could see smoke spiraling amiably from chimney tops. Time had no meaning as I watched, feeling the warmth of the sun, smelling the water and the woods. The only sound was the soft shhh of the breeze in the grass around me. The

IGA employees win trip

Two employees of the Bethel IGA have won trips on the S.S. Scotia Prince, courtesy of Jordan Meats.

The prizes came about through a meat promotion conducted by Jordan. IGA's deli manager Mabel Herrick, and her assistant, Candy Howard, were judged to have one of the most attractive meat counter displays. They took third place among the five winners.

crickets chirped pensively as they whiled away the hours and they expressed a certain tranquility and gentleness in the season.
I stood and began the climb, got to the top, and visited my spring before I turned left and made my way back through the woods to hit the Bulldozer Road and go home. I reached it safely through leaves and a song of windy laughter.

We haven't seen many ducks this last week, for the hunters are out. If they got a duck at every shot I'm sure there are none left.

Leonas Holt was in Lewiston again for his eyes. They are better.

I was pleasantly surprised with a visit from Nita Allen of Bryant Pond on Sunday. It had been several years since we had met. Denise Adams and daughter, Jessica, also called on me and brought me a lovely bouquet of flowers.

Ann Holt and her mother were in Conway, N.H., on Sunday.

The Tuesday Club met with me this week. Those coming were: Pay Holt, Zolpha DiArenzo, Dot Betts and Marion Pulsifer.

Zolpha DiArenzo's son and family, who visited her for several days, have returned home and her daughter, Louise, who was here all summer, has also gone to her home in Pennsylvania.

Rena Curtis was in Portland on Friday to be with her sister, Ruth Collins, who was having surgery that day at Maine Medical Center.

On Saturday, I attended the Oxford County Retired Teachers with Lillian Curtis, Olive Davis and Lettie Brooks at Stoneham. The topic, "Teaching in Australia" with slides by Dawn Farnham was most interesting.

The Woodstock Historical Society has a pictorial history of the town published. They are on sale by Society members, if you would like one. Or you can call 665-2450, 665-2467 or 665-2005 for further information. They are going fast, so don't delay too long.

Esther Davis took me to Bethel to Dr. Mason for a filling, which had dropped out, on Wednesday evening. I lost the filling a week ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews came from Bridgton to have dinner with me Thursday. They put on four double windows on the back of the house before going home.

Mildred Bowman, Hebron; Eva Felton, Rena Curtis, local.

I went over Sunday to see them and my sister, Lillian Harmon, who lives there. Sharon Goldsmith and daughter Julie came in from their home nearby to see us.

Ralph Hoyt was down Saturday morning and cleaned the chimney and funnels for Olive Davis. Now we are ready to build a fire.

Lillian Curtis took Lettie Brooks, Colista Morgan and Olive Davis to the retired teachers meeting held at Stoneham Church Saturday. A business meeting was held before the dinner.

Afterwards pictures on Australia and other countries where Dawn Farnham traveled during her stay in that area. Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield Packard called on Esther Davis Thursday afternoon.

Franklin Granite held their Halloween fun night Monday.

Crescent Park weekly

By ALEX GILLIES

It sure is getting a lot colder around here. Hats and mittens have been bent taken on and off. If it's going to be cold it may as well snow.

Robin Mello is a writer and storyteller. She performs all over the State of Maine and works in classrooms. She has been in Bethel for the last two weeks. She is working in the third, fourth and fifth grades. She's been teaching us on writing: stories, storytelling and acting out stories. We all have acted out about two stories, wrote three and told around three. She came into the fifth grade four times this week. It's a lot of fun.

There was an earthquake! At about 9:15 Crescent Park padded. It felt really weird. Some kids thought it was a somnolence because they had seen many lately. People say it was 4.0 on the Richter scale. It was the first one of my life.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Thursday, Nov. 3, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Featured speaker for the evening will be Dr. Edwin Churchill, head curator at the Maine State Museum, who will make a presentation on painted furniture. Dr. Churchill, who holds a Ph.D. from the University of Maine, is the author of "Simple Forms and Vivid Colors" published by the Maine State Museum in 1983. Various examples of painted furniture are expected to be on display and those attending who wish to share their painted furniture with the audience are urged to do so. Anyone wishing to attend this meeting is cordially invited.

The Bethel Historical Society hosted the fall meeting of the Maine Historic Preservation Commission at the Dr. Moses Mason House on Oct. 21. Various National Register nominations were made and approved by the Commission. Maine Historic Preservation Commission Director Earle G. Shettleworth, Jr. reported on this year's federal and state commitment to historic preservation funding and the strong support the cultural agencies—Maine Historic Preservation Commission, Maine Arts Commission, Maine State Library and Maine State Museum—are receiving from Commissioner Eve Butler and the governor's office. Christopher Glass of Camden was re-elected chairman of the Commission for another year. Lunch was served by members of the Society's special projects committee and tours of the Dr. Moses Mason House and the Broad Street Historic District were provided to those wishing them.

EBS/CPS Kids' World

By Donna A. Richard

October has been full of many interesting and varied activities in both schools. Children have been working hard at their studies and the walls of classrooms and hallways are full of the products of their labors.

Fire safety and prevention was a topic teachers addressed recently with many projects to emphasize the importance of this subject.

In 1st Grade, students saw a video "Snuffy the Fire Truck" which taught them how to "Stop", "Drop" and "Roll". They also learned how to crawl out of a smoke-filled room.

Mrs. Gardner's 1st-graders made fireperson puppets. They read a book "Buddy Bear's Bad Day." "Buddy Bear" told children not to play with matches. Kindergarten children learned the rules of bus safety with a demonstration and talk by Sonny Blake. Children in Mrs. Salway's afternoon class drew pictures of their own buses and saw "The wheels on the bus."

Ms. Reed's 4th Grade, students have been getting into the Halloween spirit by listening to and writing their own ghost stories and making spooky wax-resist paintings with black paint. They also wrote Halloween tongue twisters and are learning about alliteration in literature.

Mrs. Wheeler's Grade 5 science classes recently had a guest speaker, Peter Dumont, from the Department of Marine Resources of Augusta, showed the students starfish, sea urchins, sand dollars, horseshoe crabs, muscels, lobsters and more. Student Amanda Gilbert reports that it was a great time and hopes next year's class will be able to have the same opportunity.

The Focus Program has undergone changes and is serving students' special needs in several ways this year.

In Kindergarten and 1st Grade, the Focus teacher, Mrs. Chadbourne, is meeting with all students in the classrooms. In Grades 2-5, Ms. Chadbourne and Mrs. Nielsen work with students strong in math, language arts and general academics.

Visual art activities are provided in the classroom for everyone in Grades 1-5 by Ms. Patch periodically through the school year. Ms. Patch will also work with small groups of artistically talented students who have been identified through classroom programs.

The Mahoosuc Arts Council has sponsored a number of events for children this October. Professional storytellers Robin Mello and Rick Adam are working with Grades 1-5. Robin and Rick have been helping students use their imaginations to improve writing skills.

3rd-grade teachers, Mrs. Wight, Ms. Merrill and Mrs. O'Meara, have planned many fun and exciting educational activities for children to enjoy on Halloween day.

One of the activities planned is pumpkin math. If anyone has any pumpkins to donate, the 3rd-graders will put them to good use. Students will weigh and measure pumpkins, along with learning math skills, such as estimating and counting. The 3rd-graders will also put their imaginations to good use by creating different outfits on Halloween day. They plan on wearing clothing inside out, backwards, mismatched or any other creative way.

A special Mahoosuc Arts Council event will happen at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 28, at Telstar High School auditorium.

Just got home from Lewiston where I have been since Sunday. Went as usual for the crocheting class on Monday and stayed for the open house at E.L.H. Adult Education on Wednesday night where the community was invited in to see what the classes are doing.

A couple of my ladies from crocheting came and helped me hold down the fort, so to speak, and there were many displays of work and some demonstrations for all to see. Refreshments were for all and were plentiful as we didn't have as many come as anticipated. That was the disappointing part of it all. Last year they had a good turnout and expected the same this year, but were not to have as good fortune as last year. Hope another year will be better.

Lawrence and Grace returned home on Saturday from their tour of Alaska during the summer. It was good to see them and they have been busy since getting home. Cold weather is coming and the woodpile needed to be gotten ready so some of the family came and helped get it saved and Russell has been helping Lawrence get it split.

I took a chance and drove to Lewiston myself this time, the first in ages because of the way my legs act up but made it all right with a stop or two along the way to rest. However, on Monday when we went out to use the car, found I didn't have any brakes. I was so glad it didn't happen on Sunday when the girls were with me. They had come up and stayed over on Saturday night so kept me company driving down on Sunday.

I had my car each of them a new dress from cloth their mother had given me and Courtney wore hers on Monday and Kariann wore hers on Tuesday when they went to school. They like the dresses that their Nana makes for them and I am glad of that.

Of course had to come on sick on Tuesday but was grateful that I could get Dr. Jealous and get him to order some antibiotics. My respiratory trouble does like

STRESS MANAGEMENT COURSE

A Stress Management course sponsored by the Health Education Department of Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway has been scheduled to run in three sessions on Thursday, Nov. 10, in the hospital library and on Monday, Nov. 14 and Thursday, Nov. 17, in the hospital board room. Classes are held from 7-9:30 p.m.

This program explores various relaxation techniques, methods of behavior modification, normal vs. abnormal ranges of feelings, techniques for dealing with job stress and more and will be to act up at the most inopportune time and this was one of them.

Russell and Peggy went to the dance at Mechanic Falls on Friday night and then went to Oxford Grange on Saturday night for the dance there, so got their exercise I guess. Of course, I would like to go with them but having orders not to dance as yet has made it not so much fun to go so stay home and hate myself when they are gone. I keep busy with my fingers in doing something with yarn, thread or whatever.

Helped Wynona out yesterday by making a batch of molasses cookies for her to take last night for the open house. She was afraid she wouldn't have enough food. It was nice to see all the things offered by the Adult Ed and to see exhibits of what is being done. Also nice to be included and have folks stop to see what we were crocheting as we sat there by the table of goodies we had for folks to see.

Cold weather and Russell tells me they say colder tomorrow so got to get out the longjohns if that keeps up. Take care one and all and have a good week. Don't catch one of these terrible colds that are going around. They are horrible. Don't give them for Halloween, either and be good to children. They don't need to be hurt.

Not Without Hope
Some days are long and often empty
Without your being here.
At times the heart doth softly ache
It longs to have you near.
Your funny laugh and crazy pranks
Are missing from each day
Those hunting stories and fishing tales
Have sadly gone their way.
For comfort too we've also lost
Your constant faithful prayer
We came to you with our requests
You always seemed to care
But not all is sad or without hope
For we in confidence know
The day you left us on this earth
With Christ it was to go
The joy that you're experiencing now
We know we too will see
When our time on this earth expires
With you in Glory we'll be
From his family

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

Spirituality and Human Wholeness.
Freshly returned from a national conference of clergy and other professional persons in the field of physical, mental and spiritual health, I happily share the following prayer with you. It was written by a young seminarian student:

"I pray that Christ may come to you early in the morning, as he came to Mary that morning in the garden. And I pray that you find Christ in the night when you need him, as Nicodemus did. May Christ come to you while you are a child, for when the disciples tried to stop them, Jesus insisted that the children come to him."

"I pray that Christ may come to you when you are old, as he came to old Simon's arms and made him cry 'Lord, now let your servant depart in peace, for my eyes have seen.'"

"And may Christ come to you in grief as he did for Mary and Martha when they lost their brother. May Christ come to you in joy as he did to the wedding in Cana. And may Christ visit you when you are sick, as he did for the daughter of Jairus, and for so many who could not hear, nor stand straight, nor see, nor hear till he came."

"May the Lord Jesus come in answer to your questions as he once did for a lawyer and a rich young ruler. And in your madness may he stand before you in all his power as he stood among the graves that day before Legion."

"May Christ come to you in glory upon your dying day as he did to the thief hanging beside him that Good Friday. And though you seldom come to him, and though you often 'make your bed in hell,' as I do, may you find Christ descending there, where the apostles in their creed agreed he went, so you would know there is a place he would not come for you. Amen."

WORKSHOPS FOR WOMEN ON TAP

Transitions, a displaced homemakers project, will offer a series of workshops for women entitled "Find and use your inner potential." Topics include "Create your own dream," "Overcoming obstacles," "Stress Management," "Assertiveness," "Time management," and "Developing a wellness lifestyle."

Famous musical group in concert this Friday

The Mahoos Arts Council presents Walt Michael and Company this Friday, Oct. 28, at the Telstar Regional High School auditorium. The show starts at 7:30 p.m.

World-renowned composer, multi-instrumentalist and vocalist Walt Michael has concentrated for many years on hammered dulcimer performances in a variety of ensemble formats. The 5,000-year-old instrument is a predecessor to the piano.

The National Fine Arts Committee chose Mr. Michael to perform 14 concerts at the 1980 Winter Olympics. His composition, "Snowbird," became the theme for the closing ceremonies, bringing the sound of the hammered dulcimer to 900 million television viewers worldwide.

Walt Michael and Co. was formed in 1982 to bring the traditional songs and instruments of Europe and North America to the contemporary stages of the world. Three highly gifted musicians join Mr. Michael to form a unique string band whose music is steeped in tradition yet has also been called "the best of new age/new acoustic music." They are: John Kirk on fiddle and guitar, Mark Murphy on acoustic bass and cello, and Frank Orsini on fiddle and viola. Their repertoire includes folk music and the power of traditional music and, combined with their original material and unique instrumentation, create a highly acclaimed program.

The group has performed on NPR's "Prairie Home Companion" and played major festivals and concert halls throughout the U.S. and Europe, including tours of Ireland and Japan and a concert at New York City's Lincoln Center. They have also released three albums.

Friday night's concert has received partial funding from the Maine Arts Commission, through L.P.L. Plus A.P.L. For more information, call 824-3306.

Woodstock Historical Society

Following is a description of an old cellar:

This was a big room, half given over to hanging racks from which depended the necks of wine bottles, the other half covered with shelves on which stood many rows of preserves jars and jelly glasses. On the back of the shelves stacks of bottles were lined up. Agatha Young.

The museum has had some items given to it by Joseph Kalinowski, of West Paris. Much thanks.

Don't forget to get a copy of the Society's new pictorial history, of the town. Those who worked on the book were Ray and Annette Barnham, Ruby Emery, Mary Billings, Kathleen Bean and Earle.
